MIMIC NAVAL WAR BEGINS.

DEFENCE SQUADRON LYING SOUTHWEST OF BAR HARBOR,

Gets News That Admiral Sands is Steaming Towards the Coast and Is Walting for Wireless Reports From Scouts-Lons Coast Line Uncovered-The Game.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 5.—What is known as "The Search Problem," marking the first phase of the summer war games, was begun at noon to-day when Rear Admiral Barker, commanding the Home Defence or Blue Squadron, received official nformation that the squadron of the enemy under Rear Admral Sands had been sighted two days ago steaming toward the New England coast. Admiral Barker got this news at his present anchorage. His ships cleared from here at daylight this morning, and when the information about his opponent was delivered to him, the defence fleet was anchored out at sea about midway between Bar Harbor and Penobscot Bay, upon which are situated Belfast, Bucksport, Castine and Rockland.

The position of the defence fleet is probably thirty miles to the southwest of Bar Harbor. Admiral Barker evidently believes that the enemy's formation, officially known as the White Squadron, expects to attempt the capture of a port on the Maine coast. He must feel pretty certain of this for were he in doubt, the safer plan for him to pursue would be to concentrate his fighting force at the centre of the line within which the search game is being played, that is at Portland or its neighborhood.

This was the course followed in the search problem last year by Rear Admiral Higginson, then commanding the Home Defence squadron, who saw that, by occupying the centre of the defence line he would have only half the distance to run should the enemy attempt to take a port at either extreme end.

The limit of the coast line within which Admiral Sands may attempt to seize a port are Eastport, Me., and Cape Cod, Massachusetts. If Admiral Barker should remain in this neighborhood, and Admiral Sands should appear at Cape Cod before discovery, it would be impossible for the Home Defence fleet to make the run to Cape Cod within the six hours which Admiral Sands must occupy in mining and otherwise protecting the port he takes. If Admiral Sands does not take the port six hours before Admiral Barker arrives, he will ose the game, as Admiral Barker's line of pattle force, consisting of the battleships Kearsarge, Alabama and Illinois, is superior n combined strength to the battleships Texas, Indiana and Massachusetts, all older and less formidable, composing the enemy's division, which must use the time mentioned in laying enough mines to keep he Home Defence fleet from getting into he harbor ocupied.

If the enemy should attempt to take a port at the Cape Cod end of the defence ine, Admiral Barker's main dependence will be upon the scout ships fitted with wireless telegraph instruments. These scouts have been sent far out to sea and hope to sight the enemy's ships and ascertain their probable destination many hours before they could reach the port selected. The scouts will then endeavor to communicate the news to Admiral Barker by the wireless system, and thus enable him to cover the port supposedly desired by the enemy. The tender Nina came in this morning to get despatches for Admiral Barker, She is expected back to-morrow. There has been no other communication between the defence fleet and Bar Harbor since the warships left at daybreak. Telegraph and telephone lines, to keep in communication with lighthouses and other observation stations, were established to-day for Admiral Barker's benefit. All reports will be made to Bar Harbor, where Admiral Barker's secretary, Lieut. Johnston, and Lieut. Evans of the Hartford, are stationed to receive news and send it to the defence

JEROME ON THE NEXT ELECTION.

Low Will Be Renominated if He Wants To -As to Re-election, It's Too Early to Tell. District Attorney Jerome was asked yesterday whether he thought Mayor Low was the logical candidate of the fusionists for the Mayoralty nomination this fall.

"If Mr. Low wants the nomination," said he District Attorney, "he certainly can have it. There is no doubt about that. He dways proved himself a vote getter. As to the present administration everybody knows that for the past eighteen months we have had the best municipal administration we ever had. Not even barring Hewitt's. Havemeyer's or any of the others, the municipal administration of the past eighteen months has been the best New York ever witnessed. It doesn't make any difference if some people think Low is a imid, or weak, or vacillating man; it is not question of liking him or disliking him, it is a question of his record and the results accomplished rather than any personal traits. If he wants the nomination he can have it.

"As to the result of the election it is far oo early to judge."

"Judge," said one of the newspaper men who was present when Jerome was talking, do you think it will be necessary for the fusionists to have some burning issue to stir up the people this fall?"

stir up the people this fall?"

The people certainly will need something of the sort to stir them up. Something is necessary to get them out to vote. Reform always gets the worst of it when the vote is small. But when people are aroused in an election the vote is generally a large one and reform succeeds. There is a tradition that reform never succeeds itself. People have got so powedays they believe the have got so nowadays they believe the tradition. But if you break them of this idea and keep the hungry crowd out for two years more the chances of continuing good government will be much brighter." When asked whether he would take an active part in the coming campaign and again go on the stump, the District Attorney replied:

"That's a bridge that I have not yet come to. There will be plenty of time to talk about that later."

A MANILA PAPER SAYS THEY ARE COMPLAINING.

It Alleges That They Are Prevented From Getting Other Employment Under the Government When They Leave the Service-They Charge Bad Faith.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 .- Officials of the War Department were very much interested to-day in an article appearing in a Manila newspaper, a copy of which has just been received at the Bureau of Insular Affairs, telling of trouble among the schoolma'ams sent to the Philippines from this country.

It was declared that the Philippine Commission had made up a black list of schoolteachers who had left the service, and that they are prevented from obtaining any other employment under the Governmen in the Philippines. Col. Edwards, chief of the Insular Bureau, said he was without any other information than that contained in the newspaper, which explained that schoolteachers entering the employ of the Philippine Government did so with the understanding that they would remain at their posts for the workers at least heir posts for two years, at least.

their posts for two years, at least.

It is said that many teachers became dissatisfied with their lot and resigned before the expiration of the two years, and that now they cannot get any other work.

The teachers accuse the Government, however, of acting in bad faith in the matter of the payment of salaries, saying that payment was promised them in United States currency, but they were forced to accept checks calling for payment in Mexican currency, which has a fluctuating value.

Another complaint was that sometimes Another complaint was that sometimes hey were not paid for three months. Other eachers complained that they were given to understand that when they arrived in the Philippines they would be permitted to purchase supplies from the commissary to purchase supplies from the commissary stores at the prevailing reduced prices. This privilege was, however, cut off, and they were compelled to make purchases in the stores at the high prices, thus increasing their cost of living.

Some of the teachers said that when they went with their complaints to the proper officials they were told that if they did not like the service they could leave it. Then when they did so they were barred from entering other branches of the Government service, though they of the Government service, though they could pass a satisfactory examination.

CORBIN AND GENERAL STAFF. He Will Remain as Adjutant-General for Some Time After It Is Formed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—It has not yet been lecided whether Adjutant-General Corbin will relinquish the duties of his present office when he joins the General Staff Aug. 15, upon its organization, or will continue to serve both as Adjutant-General and esistant to Gen. Young, the Chief of Staff.

That there will be no formal relinquishment of his duties as Adjutant-General for some time after the formation of the General Staff is shown by the fact that the eral Staff is shown by the fact that the monthly army directory, issued by the War Department, will in its next issue show Gen. Corbin at the head of the Adjutant-General's office, as well as the second ranking officer of the General Staff.

It is probable, however, that some time in the future there will be a change, and that some officer of the Adjutant-General's Department will be detailed as acting Adjutant-General so that Gen. Corbin may devote more of his time to the work of the

Nearly Half as Many Established in July

as in All of Last Year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 .- During tee mrst

thirty days of the present fiscal year the Post Office Department established 2,455 rural free delivery routes. The total number of routes established for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, was 5,644, consequently nearly one-half as many outes have been established since July 1 as were established during the previous welve months.

This is largely due, however, to the fact that the appropriation of 1902 was exhausted several months before the close of the fiscal year, and while the work of mapping out routes went on as before, none was established after the funds ran out. On July 1 all these routes that had been in course of preparation were immediately established. There still remains unallotted of the appropriation for rural free delivery from the present fiscal year a sufficient sum to establish 4,000 additional routes

PEACE AT LAST IN HUNTER AND M'CARTHY CAMPS.

But That's Because It Will Cost Hunter $50 to keep It—There Was a Fine Shindy Before That, and McCarthy Couldn't Get to It for Fear of Thieves.

The principal topic of corner conversation in the neighborhood of Avenue C and Forty-eighth street, Bayonne, last night, was how Mrs. Dennis McCarthy had "trun it into" Mr. William Hunter in the police court earlier in the day.

Ever since Mr. Hunter's wife haled Mrs. McCarthy before the Bayonne court a year ago and called for a decision on the question, "How high can a lady raise her skirt with propriety?" the two families have been very much on the outs. Even before hat, Mrs. McCarthy had won her neighbor's ill-will by refusing to give credit at her grocery, and, after the skirt-raising case was settled, the conversations which the two women held across the rear fence, together with the invasions and counterinvasions of the three McCarthy children and the fourteen Hunter hens kept the neighbors' windows pleasantly crowded and the neighbors' blood pleasantly astir most of the days.

A week ago, while Mrs. McCarthy was "draining" potatoes and her pretty, twenty-year-old niece was "taking a tub upstairs," a great commotion broke out in the back yard. Mrs. McCarthy was delayed in getting out by having to finish the draining process. The niece, however, got out as far as the bathroom window would let her. She saw her eleven-year-old cousin making a wild dash over the rear grass plot. Behind him sprinted Hunter. She says Hunter brandished a stone, and "I'll pull the pudding out of you," is her version of his speech

"How long are you going to let this go on?" was the greeting which Mrs. McCarthy, who is large, gave to Mr. McCarthy that who is large, gave to Mr. McCarthy that night.

Mr. McCarthy is not large and he would probably have passed off the affair with the self-restraint that goes with 5 feet 1½, if his brother Eugene hadn't taken the luckless eleven-year-old boy out walking last Monday evening. At the corner they met Hunter and two friends.

"Out of my way, you red-headed brat," is the way Eugene describes Hunter's salutation. The exchange of blows that followed was interrupted by Mrs. McCarthy. Her husband said last night that he would have interposed if he hadn't been afraid some one would rob the grocery store—a fear that kept him firmly planted on the fear that kept him firmly planted on the soap box before the door. Mrs. McCarthy rescued her brother-in-law from under three opponents and es-corted him, black-eyed, home. Next morn-ing she sent her husband to Police Justice e for a warrant

When the Magistrate opened the case there arose such a babel of explanation, epithet and objurgation that he gave up trying to weigh nicely rights and wrongs and put Mr. Hunter under $50 bond for six months. But as Hunter went, hat in hand out of the courtroom, Mrs. McCarthy me him at the door.

"It's hair you're in need of, Bill," she remarked with sympathy. "Whin Mrs Hunter will consint to you wearing some sind over for some off me kids." WM. H. WHITING TRIES SUICIDE
